The Low Roll™ Distraction Device® Training Bodies allow instructors to provide both initial and dynamic instruction in a safe manner. Designed to have the same feel and function as the Low Roll™ and Low Roll II™ devices, students may perform the deployment protocols in relative safety. This compliments deployment drills and tactical rehearsals without significant disruption of the surrounding area. Even though this training device is safer, Defense Technology® recommends individuals deploying this device use standard safety equipment to further develop safe handling habits.

The Low Roll™ and Low Roll II™ Distraction Device® Training Bodies are reloadable devices, which are designed for unlimited use. Training fuzes may be purchased separately in a standard configuration (1697T), or with a safety clip configuration (1697TSC). The Low Roll™ and Low Roll II™ Distraction Device® Training Bodies are not regulated by ATF.

DO NOT cover the exhaust ports during deployment.
